When Wood arrived he waited until the departure of General Brooke—and then he began! First his manner of getting rid of the secretaries was characteristic. They called on him in a body and went through the formal presentation of their resignations. Wood quietly tion of their resignations. Wood quietl asked if they were in earnest or merel acting in accordance with what courte acting in accordance with what courte-sy demanded. They made the only re-ply possible, and Wood promptly ac-cepted their renunctations.

His next step was difficult. He was compelled to make selections for his new cabinet, and he fully realized the importance of choosing wisely. The requisites of the new members were such as are extremely hard to find only such as are extremely hard to find com bined in individuals here in Cuba. They must be energetic, intelligent, honest, cautious, diplomatic, broad-minded popular with Cubans who favor annexation but must, personally, represent the Independence party.

whood knew that, to a great extent, his ultimate success depends on the work accomplished by his first cabinet, and that the Cuban people would expect his nominations to be such as would confirm the indications he had already given as to the policy he intended to

On the afternoon of December 30 he gave out the names of his chosen six. The announcement met with roars of approbation. Approval of each secre-tary was unanimous all over the island. Wood had seored a success.

He realizes that the government which he intends having here willnecessarily must—be an absolutely new structure. As Liberty is to be the keynote, respect of personal rights is one of the first lessons to be taught; then the Law can fulfil its proper func tions. An honest, fearless Judiciary is the basis of all clean, equitable governments. Wood knows this, and intends to purify and morally disinfect until he succeeds in establishing what he wants.

Last year was marked by error and delay. What we down here hope-and firmly believe-is that this year will be replete with good for Cuba; that it will be one of prosperity and progress, and that this will be accomplished by heeding and avoiding repetition of the mistakes of last year.—Edwin Warren Guyol, Editor of La Lucha, Havana, in Collier's Weekly.

ECONOMY OF WARM STABLES.

In the Home and Farm, Waldo F. Brown has the following to say on the economical and other advantages of a warm shelter for the stock: "I have experimented enough to convince me that the amount of food required for two animals exposed to cold and storms in winter, will keep three in better condition, if they are kept in a warm stable and furnished with a warm bed, and that cows will give a third more milk, if warmly stabled than if exposed to cold and storms.

This last statment will be new without doubt to some of our readers, and it is only since the invention of the Babcock test that it became an established fact, but this little machine tells exactly the amount of butter fat in the milk, and shows that the eow exposed to the cold has the power to take the fat to warm up her body, and leave the milk poor. The model cattle barn is made with walls so tight that no wind can penetrate them, and has an opening over the manger for ventilation. In such stable I keep my cows about twenty hours out of the twenty-four. After the noon feed, if the weather is pleasant, they are turntd out in a sheltered barnyard and left out until evening. If the weather is cold or threatens storm they are put back in the stable as soon as they drink, and on blizzard days they are watered in their stalls. During the low temperature and piercing winds of the past two weeks, my cows have not fallen off in their milk at all, and have never shivered in the stable or looked as though they suffered with cold. Except on the few blizzard days, when I must carry water to them, the care of my stock dose not take as much time as it would to feed them in fence corners, and there are usually but few days that it is necessary to water in the barn. With the manure ditch I keep the cows clean, and with the cement floors and plenty of bedding I have all the manure, and this doubly pays for the labor of caring for the stock. My cows come to spring with smooth coats and in good flesh and I am not ashamed of them. I am so thoroughly convinced that warmth and comfort pay in the care of stock, that I shall never keep a single animal that must be left exposed to the weather, and I can heartiyl recommend to our readers the prime essentials which are: A warm stable, a good bed, all horns off and fresh pumped water. Add to these a kind master, who will feed at regular hours, and see that his animals have pure air and a chance to get sheltered sunshine, or rather sunshine without wind, and you will get the very best results from feed and care.

FEEDING CALVES.

In his article on the "Feeding and Management of Cattle," for the Bureau of Animal Industry, Prof. Henry gives some very practical suggestions for the feeding of calves. He advises taking the calf away from the mother not later than the third day, giving it, for two weeks thereafter, from ten to fifteen pounds of full milk, not less frequently than three times a day. At the end of two weeks some skim milk may be sub stituted for a portion of the full milk, making the change gradually until in three or four weeks skim milk only is fed. Full milk of the Jersey or Guernsey cow is often too rich for the calf, and part skimmed milk should be used from the very start. At the end of a month or six weeks the calf will do nicely on two feeds per day. Cows' milk has a nutritive ratio of 1 to 3.7. In skim milk the ratio is 1 to 2.1. Skim milk contains all the elements of full milk excepting the fat, and we can in a measure make up for this with cheaper substitutes. Probably the best simple substitute is flax seed, which should be polled until reduced to a jelly, and small quantity given at each feed stirred in the milk. Oil meal is cheaper than flax seed, more easily obtained, and serves practically the same pur-

Keep a calf tled by itself with a halter in comfortable quarters, with a rack in front for hay and a bex for meal. For feed use either whole or ground oats, bran, oil meal, or a mix-ture of these. By the third week have a mixture containing the grain feed at hand, and as soon as the calf is through with the mlik slip a little meal into its

CATARRH: FORERUNNER OF CONSUMPTION.

Few realize what a deep-scated, obstinate disease Catarrh is, regarding it as a simple inflammation of the nose and throat, little or no attention is given it. But, however insignificant it may seem at first, it is serious and far-reaching in its results. The foul secretions entering the circulation poison the entire system. The stomach, kidneys—in fact all the organs—feel the effect of this catarrhal poison, and when the lungs are reached its progress is rapid and destructive, and finally ends in consumption.

It frequently happens that the senses of hearing and smell are in part or entirely lost, the soft bones of the nose eaten into and destroyed, causing intense suffering and greatly disfiguring the face. While sprays, washes and salves may give temporary relief, no permanent benefit can be expected from such treatment.

RH IS A CONSTITUTIONAL OR BLOOD DISEASE.

and far beyond the reach of mere local remedies. Those who rely upon them for a cure lose valuable time, meet with disapso intment and allow the disease to take firmer hold. Only a real blood remedy can reach this troublesome and dangerous disease.

S. S. S cures Catarrh because it first cleanses and builds up the blood, purifies it, makes it rich and healthy, stimulates and builds new life into the sluggish worn-out organs, and thus relieves the system of all poisonous accumulations.

Mrs. Josephine Polhill, of Due West, S. C., writes: "I had Catarrh, which became so deep-seated that I was entirely deaf in one car, and all inside of my nose, including part of the bone, slonghed off. When the disease had gone this far the physician gave me up a incurable. I determined to try S. S. S. as a last resort, and began to improve at once. It seemed to get at the seat of the disease, and after a few weeks' treatment I was entirely cured, and for more than "swen years have had no sign of the disease."

S. S. S. is made of roots, herbs and barks of wonderful tonical and purifying properties. It is the only vegetable blood purifier known, and a certain and safe cure for all blood troubles.
